About this course

The Master of Archives and Records Management International Pathway (MARMI) is accredited by the Archives and Records Association. It is available for overseas students who want to meet the practice requirements of their home countries and who need a master's award to do so.

Introduction

You'll gain the knowledge you need to pursue an archives and records career in research, business, government, academia – indeed anywhere that qualified professionals are needed.

The International pathway is intended for overseas students who want to meet the practice requirements of their home countries and who need a master's award to do so. It includes modules specifically designed to develop knowledge of record-keeping internationally, as well as a range of optional modules for students to tailor the programme to their specific needs.

We'll teach you to work in a way that provides the accountability and transparency demanded for good governance, effective operating public in an organisational context or which meets the needs of archive users in the wider cultural and heritage environments.

There's a strong practical element and you'll be attached to the Liverpool University Centre for Archive Studies (LUCAS) which coordinates our research and outreach activities.

This pathway is available full-time for in-person study on campus only.

Who is this course for?

This pathway is suitable for overseas graduates looking to pursue an archives and records career in research, business, government, academia. Although many applicants do have a first degree in History, this is neither a requirement, nor necessarily desirable. We are delighted to receive applications from students in other disciplines who can all bring new insights to the profession.

While some professional experience is needed for this course, we are keen to support people from all backgrounds to access this course and would encourage anyone interested to review our FAQs document.

What you'll learn

This is the right course for you if you are interested in:

- gaining a deep theoretical and practical understanding of effective management of archives and records, including standards and best practice for practice outside of the UK
- working in a way that provides the accountability and transparency demanded for good governance, effective operating public in an organisational context or which meets the needs of archive users in the wider cultural and heritage environments
- formalising your experience in archives and records management with a pathway designed for graduates outside the UK
- joining an academic department with an international reputation for research and innovative and student-centred teaching.
- working with academic staff with extensive professional experience, strong international links as well as academic expertise.

Teaching and assessment

How you'll learn

Teaching takes place in regular two hour interactive lectures or 50 minute small-group seminars and workshops as we believe this leads to the best collaboration between students and staff.

Practical learning is embedded throughout the course through short placements on some modules, as well as the option to undertake a work-based dissertation, which is designed to help embed professional practice and prepare you for a career in archives and records management.

There are also field trips during the programme, which enables you to experience and research relevant best practice in the industry.

This takes place alongside directed and self-directed digital learning with professional digital tools to support the develop of relevant skills for future careers.

How you're assessed

Assessments may include a combination of written and oral assessments, as well as examinations to test specific skills developed through this course.

Written assessments may include essays, professional communication methods such as reports, blogs and flyers, and transcription/translation assessments.

Oral assessments may include face-to-face and video presentations which mirror skills used in professional life.

Pre-sessional English

Do you need to complete a Pre-sessional English course to meet the English language requirements for this course?

The length of Pre-sessional English course you'll need to take depends on your current level of English language ability.

Pre-sessional English in detail

If you don't meet our English language requirements, we can use your most recent IELTS score, or the equivalent score in selected other English language tests, to determine the length of Pre-sessional English course you require.

Use the table below to check the course length you're likely to require for your current English language ability and see whether the course is available on campus or online.

Your most recent IELTS score	Pre-sessional English course length	On campus or online
6.0 overall, with no component below 6.0	6 weeks	On campus
6.0 overall, with no component below 5.5	10 weeks	On campus and online options available
6.0 overall, with no more than one component below 5.5, and no component below 5.0	12 weeks	On campus and online options available
5.5 overall, with no more than one component below 5.5, and no component below 5.0	20 weeks	On campus
5.0 overall, with no more than one component below 5.0, and no component below 4.5	30 weeks	On campus

Your most recent IELTS score	Pre-sessional English course length	On campus or online
4.5 overall, with no more than one component below 4.5, and no component below 4.0	40 weeks	On campus

If you've completed an alternative English language test to IELTS, we may be able to use this to assess your English language ability and determine the Presessional English course length you require.

Please see our guide to Pre-sessional English entry requirements for IELTS 6.5 overall, with no component below 6.0, for further details.
