About this course

This programme enables graduates in Egyptology related disciplines to deepen their knowledge of Egyptian language and material culture. The MA provides intensive preparation for research and offers training in fields such as analytical and generic problem solving.

Introduction

The core component of the programme is the development of skills and practices necessary for scholarly research in the discipline. Our one-year curriculum puts emphasis on the integration of the taught modules (such as language, research practices, material culture, social history, landscape archaeology) with individual research projects (dissertation).

Depending on the module pathways selected, the emphasis of the course is on the archaeology or language of ancient Egypt, from the Predynastic to the Coptic period. Our MA students are also encouraged to take full advantage of the range of classes offered in the department, and to sit on available modules dispensing breadth and depth of knowledge in the areas of study relevant to their research interest.

For any enquiries please contact the Programme Lead.

Teaching and assessment

How you'll learn

Teaching takes place on campus, augmented with online support materials. Classes comprise a mixture of staff-led presentations, student-led seminars, language / text-reading classes, and one-on-one dissertation supervision. Formative group work is a built-in part of the design of some modules.

Class sizes vary by module: language classes may have five students, culture classes a dozen, while the departmental masters skills module may have over two dozen.

Students are expected to undertake 600 hours of work total per semester (including contact time, library research, private study and writing assignments). Contact hours per semester vary depending on module combination, but students availing themselves of the opportunity to access classes might easily take 8 or more sessions per week of teaching.

How you're assessed

Students are assessed through coursework in a variety of formats: for those who choose to take language, this would comprise translation exercises for beginners, with palaeographical exercises and tailored individual language projects for intermediate and advanced language students.

Culture modules' assessments usually focus on examining prominent research themes and debates within Egyptology.

The dissertation is studied over the course of the whole MA, supervised by an Egyptological staff member, and it is submitted in the September following the start of the course (i.e. 12 months later).

Liverpool Hallmarks

Careers and employability

Graduates of Liverpool MA Egyptology have a proven track record of moving on to employment in Egyptology and related areas, including both at university and in the museums sector, as well as in heritage more widely. Current UK Egyptology museum curators and lecturers at Manchester, Edinburgh and London are graduates of our department, as is the head of archaeology at the Grand Egyptian Museum in Cairo.

In addition to careers in Egyptology, graduates from our MA have gone on to pursue a wide variety of humanities careers in:

- Heritage and archives management
- Travel and tourism
- Teaching
- Civil service
- Finance
- Marketing
- University administration.

Pre-sessional English

Do you need to complete a Pre-sessional English course to meet the English language requirements for this course?

The length of Pre-sessional English course you'll need to take depends on your current level of English language ability.

Pre-sessional English in detail

If you don't meet our English language requirements, we can use your most recent IELTS score, or the equivalent score in selected other English language tests, to determine the length of Pre-sessional English course you require.

Use the table below to check the course length you're likely to require for your current English language ability and see whether the course is available on campus or online.

Your most recent IELTS score	Pre-sessional English course length	On campus or online
6.0 overall, with no component below 6.0	6 weeks	On campus
6.0 overall, with no component below 5.5	10 weeks	On campus and online options available
6.0 overall, with no more than one component below 5.5, and no component below 5.0	12 weeks	On campus and online options available
5.5 overall, with no more than one component below 5.5, and no component below 5.0	20 weeks	On campus
5.0 overall, with no more than one component below 5.0, and no component below 4.5	30 weeks	On campus
4.5 overall, with no more than one component below 4.5, and no component below 4.0	40 weeks	On campus

If you've completed an alternative English language test to IELTS, we may be able to use this to assess your English language ability and determine the Pre-sessional English course length you require.

Please see our guide to Pre-sessional English entry requirements for IELTS 6.5 overall, with no component below 6.0, for further details.
