About this course

Study in a Law School that's committed to exploring the relationship between law and social justice. Our Law (General) LLM lets you shape a programme of advanced legal study around your interests and career goals.

Introduction

Gain an in-depth understanding of law and social justice, focusing on fairness, equality and the promotion of rights for all. You will study research-informed modules led by leading experts, organised around four key themes: international business and commercial law, international human rights, medicine, healthcare and the law, and socio-legal methods.

The Liverpool Law School has a prestigious international reputation for teaching and research. All students take part in specialised Legal Research Training, equipping you with the skills, methods and perspectives used in international, European and domestic legal studies. The programme also provides rigorous training in legal analysis, critical thinking, independent research and project management, excellent preparation for a career in legal practice, government service, NGOs, international organisations or judicial appointments.

Your experience extends beyond academic study. You will have access to our employability programme, career events, internships, pro bono projects, external mooting competitions and SLSJ Extra, a series of talks and workshops with leading speakers from across the legal profession. You will also be encouraged to participate in the activities of our research clusters and benefit from visits by professionals and researchers working at the forefront of law and social justice. Through our Pan-European Seal partnership, you will gain unique insights into the world's largest IP offices and the opportunity to apply for paid one-year internships.

Teaching and assessment

How you'll learn

Teaching methods depend upon the module but most modules are taught via in-person seminars on campus. Each module will normally have a two-hour weekly seminar for a small group of students. You will have reading and other tasks to prepare for each seminar; independent study is an important part of your learning at this level. Online resources and exercises, group work and presentations all help to ensure that you develop a strong set of transferrable skills.

How you're assessed

In semesters one and two, you will take modules totalling 120 credits. Your dissertation, completed over the summer, is worth 60 credits. You are required to complete 180 credits to achieve a full LLM.

Assessment takes different formats depending on each module's learning objectives. Many modules have two assessments: a smaller piece of work, such as a case commentary or plan, mid-way through the module, followed by a more substantial essay at the end. Semester one modules are formally assessed in January, while semester two assessments take place in May and June.

Your 12,000-word dissertation is completed during the summer period (July to September). You will receive legal research training and be assigned an expert supervisor, ensuring you are fully prepared and supported throughout the process.

Careers and employability

Our LLM opens doors to a wide range of careers in law and beyond. The programme helps you build a strong academic profile and develop skills that employers value, including legal analysis, research, critical thinking and project management.

You will benefit from careers guidance, networking events, skills workshops and extra-curricular activities such as mooted competitions, internships, pro bono projects and visits from leading professionals. These experiences help you apply your learning in real-world settings and progress in your chosen career.

Graduates often go on to careers within the legal profession, including:

- Legal practice in the UK and internationally
- Training contracts, mini-pupillages and membership of the Inns of Court
- Judicial roles in the Court of Appeal, High Court and County Courts
- Positions in international courts and tribunals, including the European Court of Human Rights
- Academic and doctoral research careers

Many also pursue careers outside law, such as:

- Education
- Civil service and government
- Politics and policy work
- Charities and international non-governmental organisations (NGOs)
- International organisations including the United Nations
- Banking, business management, accounting and finance
- Healthcare, including NHS roles, police and emergency services

As a member of the Pan-European Seal programme, the University of Liverpool partners with the European Union Intellectual Property Office and the European Patent Office. You can gain insights into the world's largest IP offices, attend networking events, access extra learning opportunities and apply for paid one-year internships.

The School of Law and Social Justice also has a traineeship agreement with the European Court of Human Rights (ECHR). LLM students can compete for an internship in Strasbourg, gaining valuable international experience and insight into human rights law in practice.

This LLM gives you the knowledge, skills and confidence to pursue a fulfilling career in law, social justice or any professional field. It also provides an ideal opportunity to gain advanced specialist knowledge in preparation for further postgraduate research.

Pre-sessional English

Do you need to complete a Pre-sessional English course to meet the English language requirements for this course?

The length of Pre-sessional English course you'll need to take depends on your current level of English language ability.

Pre-sessional English in detail

If you don't meet our English language requirements, we can use your most recent IELTS score, or the equivalent score in selected other English language tests, to determine the length of Pre-sessional English course you require.

Use the table below to check the course length you're likely to require for your current English language ability and see whether the course is available on campus or online.

Your most recent IELTS score	Pre-sessional English course length	On campus or online
6.0 overall, with no component below 6.0	6 weeks	On campus
6.0 overall, with no component below 5.5	10 weeks	On campus and online options available
6.0 overall, with no more than one component below 5.5, and no component below 5.0	12 weeks	On campus and online options available
5.5 overall, with no more than one component below 5.5, and no component below 5.0	20 weeks	On campus
5.0 overall, with no more than one component below 5.0, and no component below 4.5	30 weeks	On campus

Your most recent IELTS score	Pre-sessional English course length	On campus or online
4.5 overall, with no more than one component below 4.5, and no component below 4.0	40 weeks	On campus

If you’ve completed an alternative English language test to IELTS, we may be able to use this to assess your English language ability and determine the Pre-sessional English course length you require.

Please see our guide to Pre-sessional English entry requirements for IELTS 6.5 overall, with no component below 6.0, for further details.
