About this course

Designed by one of the UK's leading Operations and Supply Chain Management research groups, this programme is also accredited by the Chartered Institute of Procurement and Supply (CIPS) and the Chartered Institute of Logistics and Transport UK (CILT).

Introduction

The programme is aimed at graduates in management, engineering and science, practising operations professionals and non-sector professionals who wish to increase their understanding of operations and supply chain management.

You will get a theoretical and practical exposition of the factors that are necessary for effective operations and supply management in today's global and highly competitive markets.

In addition, you will learn how successful operations performance can shape and influence the sales and profit ambition of a business. You will develop a profound understanding of the processes and techniques for developing operations strategy and managing operations and supply chain activities.

- Learn via innovative teaching techniques including interactive games, cases and simulations
- See real-world scenarios with industry visits
- Supported to work towards gaining full or chartered membership of our accrediting bodies. Graduates of the programme will be exempt from the academic requirements of the Chartered Institute of Procurement and Supply

(CIPS, subject to renewal) and the Chartered Institute of Logistics and Transport UK (CILT)

- Apply your knowledge by undertaking a work-based project which is undertaken in conjunction with industry. Recent projects have been undertaken in collaboration with organisations including Bibby Distribution, Corus, Ford Motor Company, Hewlett Packard and Jaguar Land Rover.

Who is this course for?

If you want to become an expert in operations and supply chain management and boost your career prospects, this programme is a great fit. It's open to graduates from any discipline as well as professionals seeking to advance their knowledge of managing business operations, supply chains, and logistics.

What you'll learn

- Strategic management of operations and supply chain systems
 - How to structure, analyse and optimise global supply chains
 - How to design and evaluate sustainable supply chains
 - How to design lean systems
 - How to model and simulate business decisions
 - How to manage industry-specific projects and project teams
 - Emerging digital technologies and systems, and their applications in different business contexts.

Accreditation

The University of Liverpool Management School (ULMS) is one of an elite group of institutions worldwide to hold the gold standard 'triple-crown' accreditation from AACSB, AMBA and EQUIS.

The MSc Operations and Supply Chain Management programme is accredited by the Chartered Institute of Procurement & Supply \(CIPS\) and the Chartered Institute of Logistics & Transport \(CILT\).

CIPS and CILT are international organisations, based in the UK, serving the purchasing, logistics and supply professions. Student membership is available to students whilst studying for the MSc.

Accreditation in detail

AACSB

AACSB Accreditation Standards require a high quality teaching environment, a commitment to continuous improvement, and curricula responsive to the needs of businesses. This achievement means that the Management School meets specific standards of excellence. It also means it's committed to on-going improvement in delivering high quality education.

AMBA

AMBA is the highest standard of achievement in postgraduate business education. MBA students and graduates, business schools and employers all recognise it as a gold standard. AMBA's rigorous criteria and assessment process ensure that only programmes that demonstrate the highest standards in teaching, learning and curriculum design; career development and employability; and student, alumni and employer interaction achieve accreditation.

EQUIS

The School is also accredited by EQUIS, which is the leading international system of quality assessment, improvement and accreditation of higher education institutions in management and business administration. Institutions that are accredited by EQUIS must demonstrate not only high general quality in all dimensions of their activities, but also a high degree of internationalisation and corporate connections.

Teaching and assessment

How you'll learn

Modules are taught using the latest active learning techniques including business simulations, real-world case studies, interactive participation software, and lecture capture.

The principal forms of teaching are lectures and seminars, with most taught sessions normally being supported by additional resources such as hand-outs and online materials accessible via the virtual learning environment (Canvas). Seminars give the opportunity for detailed discussion of a topic under the direction of a tutor. You are normally expected to prepare work in advance of the taught sessions and you may also be expected to present work or give presentations.

Following semester two you will complete either a project or a business simulation in the area of operations and/or supply chain management, with the support of an academic supervisor. This will require evidence of in-depth mastery of research techniques, the ability to assemble and analyse data and the evaluation of outcomes and results. All projects/business simulations will investigate specific problems in the field of operations and supply chain management, and propose solutions to these contemporary issues

Teaching time will account for an average of 10 hours per week and you should anticipate an additional 12 hours of self-directed study.

How you're assessed

In semesters one and two, you will take modules totalling 120 credits. The business simulation or project completed during the summer period is worth 60 credits and students will be supported by their academic supervisor.

Students are required to complete 180 credits to achieve a full MSc.

Subject to meeting specific criteria outlined by the University, students will graduate with a Pass, Merit or Distinction.

Assessment tasks are varied and some may be designed specifically to meet the learning outcomes of a particular programme of study, but students can expect to be assessed via coursework, essay, group work, presentations, case studies, negotiation exercises, reports and examinations. The weighting of individual components will vary from one module to another. All assessment information is included within the module specification.
