Children’s Rights and Brexit: Perspectives and Prospects

Helen Stalford
European Children’s Rights Unit
Constitutional Commitment to Children’s Rights

(But we still have the Human Rights Act and the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child)
• Binding legal obligations to protect and promote children’s rights
• Comprehensive policies and programmes of action that support co-ordination and exchange between Member States
• Co-ordination of security, judicial and child protection services
Some questions we might want to start asking

1. What EU measures and support do we want to hold on to?

2. What EU measures do we want to get rid of/replace with better domestic law or policy?

3. What replacement funding do we need to support children’s rights following Brexit?

4. How can we better use other domestic and international children’s rights mechanisms to develop children’s rights?