

INTRODUCING YOU TO...

LIVERPOOL UNIVERSITY VETERINARY ETHNICITY & DIVERSITY

Hello 2025 freshers!

We are LUVED - a newly established sub-society of LUVS, launched in 2024. Our mission is to build a supportive and inclusive community that celebrates and encourages diversity across the vet school. This includes – but isn't limited to – ethnic and cultural diversity.

Although we've only started partway through last year, we've hosted some amazing events - our most popular being a potluck (themed "foods you grew up with") and games night. We also hosted our first EDI talk featuring external speakers who expanded on diversity in the vet profession (topics including: life after graduation, dealing with microaggressions, and practicing religion as a vet).

We have also visited a local school to talk to students about applying to vet school and plan to do more similar outreach moving forward as a key part of our mission to continue encouraging and supporting students from all backgrounds to consider a career in veterinary medicine.

This coming year, we are planning to bring back this and so much more!

LUVED is open to absolutely everyone – there's no cost to join, and so far all our socials and events have been completely free.

Excited to meet all of you soon!

@LUVEDSOC
