Dear Student,

Welcome to the University of Liverpool, the Veterinary Course, LUVS, and all its sub-societies, we’re all sure you’ll have a great time!

Whether you are already cool, calm and collected or don’t know the first thing to do in an emergency, LVECCS are here to arm you with the skills and knowledge to respond to emergency and critical care situations the best you can.

We are open to all students in all years and aim to have something for everyone. Veterinary emergencies happen in all species and can be broad or very specific – we intend to put on talks for all main areas of species-specific emergency and critical care, including small animal, farm animal, equine and exotics. Covid-19 guidelines permitting we also intend to host practical sessions to help develop those key skills when an emergency presents.

LVECCS prides itself on being welcoming and open to all. You do not need a specific interest in emergency and critical care work to be part of the society, or to benefit from our events. We aim to make the content of our events as accessible for all as possible.

We are completely free to join and will have events (and hopefully practicals) all year. Join our facebook group (Liverpool Veterinary Emergency and Critical Care Society – LVECCS) through facebook or our QR Code below to get all the latest news and updates.

We hope to see you at an event soon,

The LVECCS Committee
