

Liverpool University Veterinary Sustainability Society

Hi all and well done on getting into Liverpool!

We hope you all have a wonderful time over your next few years here.

We are the student veterinary sustainability society for the University of Liverpool.

Our previous events have included:

- Litterpicks - on campus, in residential areas and on local beaches. Do not worry if you have never done one before- most people haven't either! All equipment is provided (including some really fetching hi-vis jackets).
- 'Crafternoons'- with the wellbeing representative and peer supporters
- Plant workshops
- Evening talks- on a range of topics, such as: a sustainable veterinary industry, how we can be sustainable as individuals and nature friendly farming

Our committee is composed of one president, a Leahurst rep, a Liverpool rep and a Vet sustain representative. VetSustain helps and supports the drive towards sustainable change across the veterinary profession, from the curriculum, to out in practice as a vet. You can find out more about them here: <https://vetsustain.org/>

We are currently looking to fill the Liverpool representative role, this will include promoting events, helping to arrange talks and initiatives and provide feedback from years 1-3. If you are interested in this please email either the president Jennifer Ainger at hljainge@liverpool.ac.uk or the VetSustain representative Alice Lester at hlaleste@liverpool.ac.uk . You can apply as an individual or as a pair.

What is regenerative farming?

(And why is it important to us vets?)

With Grace Mulhearn BVSc MRCVS & Huw Foulkes, Pentrefelin Dairy

Join us at the CTH on October 24th at 6pm for a talk by Huw Foulkes, a north walian (calf at foot) micro-dairy farmer and his local vet, Grace Mulhearn, on what it means to be a regenerative farmer and how we as vets play a role in the future of sustainable British farming.
